INTRODUCTION.

THE compiler of this Grammar and Dictionary of the Language of the Blackfoot Indians is the Rev. John William Tims, trained at the Church Missionary College, Islington, and sent out in 1883 to the North-West American Mission of that Society. His station is at "Blackfoot Crossing," on the Canadian Pacific railway, in the province of Alberta, and the diocese of Calgary, which for the present is united to Saskatchewan, about 50° north latitude, and 110° west longitude, on the east side of the Rocky Mountains.

The Blackfeet (called by the French, Pieds Noirs, and by the Germans, Schwarzfusse) are so called from their moccasins being blackened by the soil. They are, or were, a powerful tribe, and were divided into three bands. (1) The Blackfeet proper; (2) the Pa-e-gun; (3) the Blood. Under the arrangements of the Canadian Government, reserves have been set apart for these tribes, and the reserve of the Blackfeet proper, where Mr. Tims resides, is immediately south of the railway. The reserve for the Blood band is to the south, not far from the frontier of the United States. It is stated with confidence that the same language is spoken by the Blackfoot proper, the Pa-e-gun, and the Blood. This philological work is of considerable importance. No portion of the Scriptures has as yet passed through the press, but a portion exists in manuscript.

The tribe belongs to the great Algonquin family, and, like all the languages of North American, it is Polysynthetic. The written character is the Roman. Vocabularies existed previously ; but this is the first grammar, and we have to thank Mr. Tims for this important contribution to knowledge.

tion Committee of the Society for Promoting

P R E F A C E.

THE present work has been prepared specially for missionaries, school-teachers, and others who are called to labour amongst the Indians who comprise the Blackfoot nation.

When the compiler came to labour amongst the Blackfeet in the summer of 1883, he felt greatly the need of a grammar and dictionary; but as none had ever been published, he was obliged to learn word by word from the Indians themselves, and pick up the grammar of the language little by little.

The hope of facilitating the learning of the language to others, newly entering upon the work, has induced him to arrange a great portion of the material he has collected during the past four years and a half, into the form of a Grammar and Dictionary.

The plan has been to give such rules and examples in the Grammar as will make things plain and easy to the learner. In the Dictionary, the imperative, and the first person singular, and third person singular, present indicative, are generally given. The writer always adopted the plan of putting these forms down when collecting words for his own use, and found it a great help.

In the imperative second singular, the root of the verb is always seen, it never having any prefix, and the present indicative, in all intransitive verbs, can be formed from it by removing the final -t and prefixing nit-. Then the second person singular is obtained by changing the pronoun nit- to kit-, and the third person, by dropping the prefix altogether and affixing the proper ending. An example of this simple plan will make it plain.

CONJ. 1.

An-it, *say thou.*Nit-an-i, *I say.*Kit-an-i, *you say.*An-i-ü, he says.

CONJ. 2.

Ok-at', *sleep thou.*Nit-ai-ok-a, *I sleep.*Kit-ai-ok-a, *you sleep.*Ai-ok-au, he sleeps.

The particle ai, in the example in Conj. 2, will be found explained in the grammar.

The transitive verb, the writer treated in the same way. In the inanimate form of it, he found that the imperative second singular always ended in -it, -tot, or -toat. He found that by changing these endings into -ip or -top, as the imperative indicated, and prefixing the pronouns, he could always get the first and second persons of the present indicative. Then by dropping the prefixes, and changing the final -p to -mai-e, he got the third person. An example will again illustrate the simplicity of this.

CONJ. 1.

Ůk-o-me'-tsit, *love it.*Nit-Ůk-o-me-tsip, *I love it.*Kit-Ůk-o-me-tsip, *you love it.*Ůk-o-me-tsim-ai-e, he loves it.

CONJ. 3.

An-ŷis-toat, *say it.*Nit-an-ŷis-top, *I say it.*Kit-an-ŷis-top, you say it.

The transitive animate, the writer always treated after the same plan. He found that all imperatives, with the objective me, ended in -kit, and that by removing this syllable from the end, and prefixing it to the same word, he nearly always got the first person singular, responding to the imperative. Thus—Ůk-o-mŷm'-mo-kit, *love me.*Kit-Ůk'-o-mŷm-mo, I love you.

If the learner will take the trouble to make observations like these as he studies the examples of the verb given in the grammar, he will soon find himself beginning to understand clearly what, from the numerous inflections of the verb, he at first thought himself unable to grasp.

The writer has ventured to make a classification of the verbs, and to reduce them to conjugations.

A more thorough knowledge of the language may call for a rearrangement of these, but the writer claims the clemency of his brethren in the work, seeing that at present all are but students in the language, and none professors.

The Grammar is by no means complete, nor does the Dictionary contain, by a long way, all the words, even of common occurrence. The reason is, that the compiler has not had the time to spare to bring out an exhaustive work. If it is found sufficient to be a guide and help to those who are working for the advancement of the Blackfeet, he will be well repaid.

The system the writer has adopted of separating the syllables is to make the reading of the words more easy, and if proper attention is paid to the accented syllable, the student will have little trouble in making himself understood.

GRAMMAR OF THE BLACKFOOT LANGUAGE.

ORTHOGRAPHY.

THE Blackfeet possess no written characters of their own; nor have they, as yet, any syllabic system, like the Crees. In making notes for my own use, I used the Roman characters, and have adhered to them in the following pages. The letters employed in writing Blackfoot are fifteen in number, and are as follows:—

a e h i k m n o p s t u w x y.

The consonants are sounded as in English. The vowels and diphthongs, in this work, are sounded as follows:—

a as a in father .	ă as a in fat .
e „ a „ hate .	ě „ e „ met .
i „ i „ pique .	ĩ „ i „ fit .
o „ o „ note .	õ „ o „ not .
u „ u „ rule .	ũ „ u „ but .
ai as i in pike .
au „ ou „ bough .
aw „ aw „ law .

Kh is used when the guttural sound is very pronounced. As a rule, but not without exceptions, k at the end of a syllable is guttural; h is only used in conjunction with k as above. There is no aspirate in the Blackfoot language. The accent (') requires the syllable which it follows to be emphasized.

ETYMOLOGY.

THERE are eight parts of speech in the Blackfoot language—noun, pronoun, adjective, verb, adverb, conjunction, preposition, and interjection.

THE NOUN.

I. GENDER.

Nouns are divided into two genders—animate and inanimate. Animate nouns include, not only living creatures, but also many things that have no life, especially different kinds of tools; as “hammer,” “auger,” “saw,” etc.; and agricultural implements; as “plough,” “harrow,” etc.

On the other hand, all members of the body are inanimate.

Great care must be taken to distinguish between the animate and inanimate nouns, because adjectives, pronouns, and verbs are affected by them. Thus, “hammer” being of the animate gender, the Blackfoot Indian, instead of saying, “I like it, (the) hammer,” nit-ōkh'-si-tsip i-tai'-pix-o-pi, says, “I like him, (the) hammer,” nit-ōkh'-sim-mau i-tai'-pix-o-pi.

To distinguish the sexes in Blackfoot, different words are used; as—

Nin'-nau, man; a-ke', woman.

Na-pim', male animal; skim, female animal.

Sök'-u-ma-pi, boy; a-ke'-ku-ün, girl.

In some cases, and especially in reference to tribes and nationalities, -ku-ün and -ake, attached to the noun representing the name of the tribe or nationality, indicate the male and female respectively; thus—

Six-i-kai'-ku-ün, Blackfoot man; Six-i-ka'-ke, Blackfoot woman.

Kai'-nai-ku-ün, Blood Indian man ; Kai'-nake, Blood Indian woman.

Pe-kün'-e-ku-ün, Peigan Indian man ; Pe-kün'-a-ke, Peigan Indian woman.

Nap'-i-e-ku-ün, white man ; nap'-i-a-ke, white woman.

II. NUMBER.

The plural of nouns of the animate gender always ends in -x or -ix.

It is formed—

(1) By adding -x or -ix to the singular ; as—

A-tse'-tsi, glove ; a-tse'-tsix, gloves.

Po-kun', ball ; po-kun'-ix, balls.

(2) By substituting -x or -ix for the last letter or syllable of the singular ; as—

Se-se'-ni-tau, a file ; se-se'-ni-tax, files.

Mo-ksis', awl ; mo-ksix', awls.

Nin'-nau, man ; nin'-nax, men.

The plural of nouns of the inanimate gender always ends in -sts, -ěsts, or -ists.

It is formed—

(1) By adding -ts, -sts, -ěsts, or -ists to the singular ; as—

Mo-yis', a lodge ; mo-yists, lodges.‡

Au'-tox-i-nat-si, a bean ; au'-tox-i-nat-sists, beans.

Ksis-tsīm'-man, a bead ; ksis-tsīm'-man-ists, beads.

(2) By substituting -sts, -ěsts, or -ists for the last letter or syllable of the singular ; as—

Sin-ak'-sīn, writing ; sin-ak'-sists, writings.

Okh-kīn', bone ; okh-ki'-ists, bones.

III. CASE.

In Blackfoot there are three cases—nominative, possessive, and accusative.

The possessive case is indicated by the possessive pronoun; thus, "The Indian, his horse," for, "The Indian's horse;" "The boy, his book," for "The boy's book."

The accusative case is the same as the nominative, except when the animate noun is the object in a sentence with the nominative in the third person. Then a change takes place in the termination of the noun; as—

Nin'-nau, a man; He sees a man, Nan'-nu-yi-u-ai-e nin'-nai-i.

Po-no-köm'-i-ta, a horse; He sees a horse, Nan'-nu-yi-u-ai-e po-no-köm'-it-ai-i.

IV. TERMINATIONS.

Abstract nouns end in -sîn-ni or -ani. They are formed from the third person singular of intransitive verbs.

(1) In conjugation 1, by taking away the ordinary ending -i-u, and affixing -sîn-ni; as—

Köm-os'-i-u, he steals; köm-os'-sîn-ni, theft.

(2) In conjugation 2, by taking away the ordinary ending -au, and affixing -ani; as—

Ket'-au, he bakes; ket-ani, the baking.

(3) In conjugations 3 and 4, by simply adding -sîn-ni to the third person; as—

A'-mīs-so, he ascends; a-mīs-so'-sîn-ni, the ascending.

Puk'-si-pu, he comes here; puk-si-pu'-sîn-ni, coming here.

(4) In conjugation 5, by taking away the ordinary ending -m, and affixing -sîn-ni; as—

Ai-pim, he enters; pi'-sîn-ni, the entering (for explanation of ai- in ai-pim, see page 17).

(5) In conjugation 6, by taking away the ordinary ending -üm, and affixing a-sîn-ni; as—

Müx-în-üm', he is wicked; müx-în-a'-sîn-ni, wickedness.

Nouns ending in -at-sīs are derived from verbs, and are names of instruments; as—

Ni-nik-i-u, he sings, or makes music; ni-nik'-i-at-sīs, a musical instrument.

No-mawk'-i-ak-i-u, he sweeps; no-mawk'-i-mat-sīs, a broom.

Po-kai'-īm-au, he fans; po-kai'-īm-at-sīs, a fan.

Nouns with the prefix i-tai- and affix -o-pi are also derived from verbs, and indicate the instrument with which the action implied in the verb is carried out; thus—

Ai'-sīn-ak-i-u, he writes; i-tai'-sīn-ak-i-o-pi, a pen.

Ai'-pīx-i-u, he hammers; i-tai'-pīx-o-pi, a hammer.

Nouns become collective by prefixing o- or ot-, and affixing -sīn-na; as—

A-ke', woman; ot'-a-ke-i-sīn-na, women.

Po-kau', child; o-po-ka'-sīn-na, children.

Ap'-ot-skīn-a, ox; ot'-ap-ot-skīn-ai-i-sīn-na, cattle.

Personal nouns are formed from the third person singular of intransitive verbs by adding a; as—

A'-po-tūk-ki-u, he works; a'-po-tūk-ki-ua, a worker.

Ai'-sats-ak-i-u, he is carpentering; ai'-sats-ak-i-u-a, a carpenter.

Au'-mai-tūk-ki-u, he believes; au'-mai-tūk-ki-u-a, a believer.

Nouns ending in -e-pītsi denote persons who continue in one vocation. They are formed by adding -e-pītsi to the third person singular of intransitive verbs after the final letter has been removed; as—

Kōm-os'-i-u, he steals; kōm-os'-i-e-pītsi, a thief.

Au-kōm'-ōn-i-u, he begs; au-kōm'-ōn-i-e-pītsi, a beggar.

V. VERBALIZED NOUNS.

Nouns are transformed into verbs by the addition of -ina or -i-ina if the noun is of the animate gender, and -ai-e if the noun is of the inanimate gender; thus—

Nin'-nau, a man; nin'-nai-ina, he is a man.

I-mi-ta', a dog; i-mi-tai'-ina, it is a dog.

U-au', an egg; u-au-ai'-e, it is an egg.

Spik'-sin-ak-sin, a book; spik'-sin-ak-sin-ai-e, it is a book.

VI. NOUNS INSEPARABLE FROM THE POSSESSIVE PRONOUN.

Many nouns are never used apart from the possessive pronoun; as—

No'-kos, my child; ko'-kos, your child; o'-kos, his child.

These are chiefly terms of relationship; as—

Nin'-na, my father; ni-tün'-na, my daughter; no-ko'-a, my son; ni-ksis'-ta, my mother; nom'-a, my husband; no-to-ke'-man, my wife; nis', my elder brother; nēs-kün', my younger brother; nis', my son-in-law; ni-īm'-sa, my daughter-in-law; nīn'-sta, my elder sister; nīs-īs'-sa, my younger sister (woman speaking), nīt'-a-kem, my younger sister (man speaking).

A few other nouns have the same peculiarity; as—

No'-tas, my beast; nokh'-a, my bucket, or water-vessel.

THE PRONOUN.

I. PERSONAL PRONOUNS.

These are—

Singular.

Plural.

1. Nēs-to'-a, I .	{ 1. Nēs-tün'-an, we (excl.).
1. Kēs-tün'-un, we (incl.).
2. Kēs-to'-a, or ksēs-to'-a, you .
3. Os-to'-i, he .
	2. Kēs-to'-au, you .
	3. Os-to'-au-ai, they .

Note: "We" (excl.) does not include the second person, that is to say, the party addressed, but only the first and third persons. "We" (incl.) includes the party addressed. This note must be borne in mind wherever *of the mista

Rista
wista*

“we” (excl.) and “we” (incl.) are met with in this grammar, and applies also to “our” (excl.) and “our” (incl.) wherever met with.

When attached to verbs as prefixes, the personal pronouns are contracted in the singular into nit-, kit-, and ot-. As a rule, the third personal pronoun is not used, the final termination sufficiently indicating the person of the verb. In conjugating the present tense of the verb “say,” we get an example of this—

Nit'-ani, I say.

Kit'-ani, you say.

Ani-u, he says.

Sometimes, instead of the third personal pronoun, i- stands as a prefix; as, i-pa'-tom-ai-e, he carries it.

This is an insertion which in the first and second persons is admitted for the sake of euphony, and is retained in the third person. It will be fully explained when dealing with euphonic changes in the verb.

In the plural, the pronoun is divided when attached to the verb, and the first part, nit-, kit-, is prefixed, and the latter part, -ŭn-an, -au, affixed to the verb; thus—

We love him, nit-ŭk-o-mĭm-mau-ŭn-an.

Ye love him, kit-ŭk-o-mĭm-mai-au.

This will be readily seen when we come to study the verb.

The accusative case is expressed by a change in the inflection of the verb (which see).

II. POSSESSIVE PRONOUNS

Are the same as the personal, but are only used in their contracted forms; as, nits, no, ni, or n, my; kits, ko, ki, or k, thy; ots or o, his.

Examples of the possessive pronoun—

Singular Inanimate.

- Is-tsi-pīs'-si-mat-sīs, a whip.
 Nīts-īs-tsi-pīs'-si-mat-sīs, my whip.
 Kīts-īs-tsi-pīs'-si-mat-sīs, thy whip.
 Ots-īs-tsi-pīs'-si-mat-sīs, his whip.
 Nīts-īs-tsi-pīs'-si-mat-sīn-an, our whip (excl.).
 Kīts-īs-tsi-pīs'-si-mat-sīn-un, our whip (incl.).
 Kīts-īs-tsi-pīs'-si-mat-sīs-o-au, your whip.
 Ots-īs-tsi-pīs'-si-mat-sīs-o-ai-au, their whip.

Plural Inanimate.

- Sin-ak'-sīn, writing.
 Ni-sīn'-ak-sīn-īsts, my writings.
 Ki-sīn'-ak-sīn-īsts, thy writings.
 O-sīn'-ak-sīn-īsts, his writings.
 Ni-sīn'-ak-sīn-an-īsts, our writings (excl.).
 Ki-sīn'-ak-sīn-un-īsts, our writings (incl.).
 Ki-sīn'-ak-sīn-o-au-īsts, your writings.
 O-sīn'-ak-sīn-o-ai-au-īsts, their writings.

Singular Animate.

- A'-tse-tsi, a glove.
 No'-tse-tsi, my glove.
 Ko'-tse-tsi, thy glove.
 O'-tse-tsi, his glove.
 No'-tse-tsīn-an, our glove (excl.).
 Ko'-tse-tsīn-un, our glove (incl.).
 Ko'-tse-tsi-o-au, your glove.
 O'-tse-tsi-o-ai-au, their glove.

Note: When the pronoun is prefixed to a'-tse-tsi, the initial letter of the noun is dropped for euphony.

Plural Animate.

- Pun, a bracelet.
 No-pun'-ix, my bracelets.

Ko-pun'-ix, thy bracelets.

O-pun'-ix, his bracelets.

No-pun'-in-an-ix, our bracelets (excl.).

Ko-pun'-in-un-ix, our bracelets (incl.).

Ko-pun'-o-au-ix, your bracelets.

O-pun'-o-ai-au-ix, their bracelets.

Some nouns are never used apart from the possessive pronoun ; as—

No'-tas, my beast ; ko'-tas, your beast ; o'-tas, his beast.

A partial list is given in the remarks on the noun (p. 6).

Nouns beginning with the letter m, especially members of the body, drop the initial letter when the pronoun is prefixed ; as—

Mo-tsīs', a hand ; no-tsīs', my hand.

Mo-kīns'-tsīs, an elbow ; no-kīns'-tsīs, my elbow.

Ma-awx', a grandparent ; na-awx', my grandparent.

A few exceptions to this rule exist ; as—

Mau'-kai-īs, a breast ; no-mau'-kai-īs, my breast.

Some nouns with m for the initial letter omit the third possessive pronoun, and replace the m in its stead ; as—

Mat-tsi-kīn', a moccasin ; nat-tsi-kīn, my moccasin ; mat-tsi-kīn, his moccasin.

Mat-sīn-ni', a tongue ; nat-sīn-ni', my tongue ; mat-sīn-ni, his tongue.

A few nouns require the third possessive pronoun to undergo a change for euphony's sake ; as—

Nīn'-na, my father ; kīn'-na, thy father ; un'-ni, his father.

Nīs', my son-in-law ; kīs', thy son-in-law ; us', his son-in-law.

Nouns with a for the final letter change a into i or ai with the third possessive pronoun ; as—

Ni-tūn'-na, my daughter ; ki-tūn'-na, thy daughter ; o-tūn'-ni, his daughter.

Nots-tsíp'-pîn-na, 'my cheek; kots-tsíp'-pîn-na, thy cheek;
ots-tsíp'-pîn-nai, his cheek.

“Mine,” “thine,” “his,” etc., are thus declined—

Singular.	Plural.
Nit-si-nan', mine .	{ Nit-si-nan'-an, ours (excl.) .
	{ Kit-si-nan'-un, ours (incl.) .
Kit-si-nan', thine .	Kit-si-nan'-o-au, yours .
Ot-si-nan', his .	Ot-si-nan'-o-ai-au, theirs .

III. DEMONSTRATIVE PRONOUNS.

These are—

Singular animate and	{	am'-om, or am'-oi-ă, this .
inanimate,
Plural animate,		am'-ox-îm, or am'-ox-i, these .
„ inanimate,		am'-osts-îm, or am'-osts-i, these .
Singular animate,		om'-ûm, that .
„ inanimate,		om'-îm, that .
Plural animate,		om'-îx-îm, or om'-îx-îk, those .
„ inanimate,		om'-ists-îm, those .

The second form of the pronouns this and these is used only when the reference is to something in the hand.

IV. RELATIVE PRONOUNS.

Singular animate,	an-nök', who .
Plural „	an-niks'-îsk, who .
Singular inanimate,	an-nik', which .
Plural „	an-nists'-îsk, which .

“What” is expressed by the suffix pi- attached to the verb; as—

I told him what you said, nit-sit'-an-îs-tau kit-an'-i-pi.

I hear what you are saying, kit-ai'-okh-to kit-au'-an-i-pi.

V. INTERROGATIVE PRONOUNS.

Singular animate,	tük-ka', who .
„ inanimate,	{ ta'-a, which (of several) .
and inanimate,

- Singular animate*, tūm-a', or tai'-a, which (of two).
 „ inanimate, tsīm-a', or tsi'-a, which (of two).
Plural animate, tsi-ksīm-a', or tsi-kse-a', which.
 „ inanimate, tsīs-tsīm-a', or tsīs-tse-a', which.
 tsa', what.
 awx'-a, what.

The second form of the pronouns which is used only when the things referred to are in the hand.

VI. INDEFINITE PRONOUNS.

- Singular animate and inanimate*, } stsīk'-i, another. anta
Plural animate, } stsīk'-ix, some others.
 „ inanimate, } stsīk'-ists, some others.

The other indefinite pronouns, as a-kai-em', many, un'-na-to-si, few, etc., will be found in the dictionary.

A few examples of the use of the pronouns may be a help to some, and are here given.

Nit-ōkh'-si-tsip am'-oi-a spīk'-sin-ak-sin, I like this book.

Kit-si-nan'-ats? Is it yours?

A nit-si-nan'-ai-e. Nīn'-na nīt'-o-kok, Yes, it is mine. My father, he gave it to me.

Tūk-ka'-a kit-ap'-ūs-sūm-mau? Who are you looking after?

An-nōk' nīn'-nau-ōk ni-na'-ma kōm-os'-at-si-u-ōk, The man who stole my gun.

Ta'-a kīt-ōkh'-sīm-mau? Which do you like best?

Tsi-kse-a' kīt-ai'-ak-o-to-au? Which will you take?

Tsa kitau'-an-i? What are you saying?

Ko-kit stsīk'-ists spīk'-sīn-ak-sīn-ists, Give me other books.

THE ADJECTIVE.

Adjectives consist chiefly of particles which have no place apart from the nouns to which they are prefixed; as—

Ōkh-si-an-i-kōp-pi, good young man.

Ma-ni-po-ka, new-born child.

Ap-ai-pīs-tsi, white blanket.

VERBALIZED ADJECTIVES.

Though adjectives exist only as particles, yet, when these particles are given the terminations of verbs, they stand by themselves.

Verbalized adjectives belong to the first conjugation of the intransitive verb, and have both animate and inanimate forms. In some instances, especially in reference to colours, the animate form follows the sixth conjugation.

Examples of animate and inanimate forms—

Animate,	man-si'-u, it is new.
Inanimate,	man-i'-u, it is new.
Animate,	spīk'-si-u, it is thick.
Inanimate,	spīk-e'-u, it is thick.
Animate,	ksīx-īn-ūm', he (or it) is white.
Inanimate,	ksīx-īn-at'-si-u, it is white.

NUMERAL ADJECTIVES.

One,	ni-tuks'-kūm.
Two,	na'-to-kūm.
Three,	ni-oks'-kūm.
Four,	nīs-so'.
Five,	nīs-īt-to'.

The numeral adjectives vary in their terminations, according as they are prefixed to animate or inanimate nouns; thus—

(1) Before animate nouns—

One horse,	ni-tüks'-kūma-po-no-köm'-i-ta.
Two horses,	na'-to-kūm-i-po-no-köm'-i-tax.
Three ,,	ni-oks'-kūm-i- ,, ,,
Four ,,	nīs-so-yim'-i- ,, ,,

Six ,,	nai'-i- ,, ,,
Seven ,,	i-ki't'-si-kūm-i- ,, ,,
Eight ,,	nan'-is-so-yim-i- ,, ,,
Nine ,,	pik'-si- ,, ,,
Ten ,,	ke'-pi- ,, ,,

(2) Before inanimate nouns—

One egg,	ni-tuks'-kau-o-au'.
Two eggs,	na'-tok-ai-o-au'-ěsts.
Three „	ni-oks'-kai- „
Four „	nīs-so-o'-i- „
Five „	nīs-īt-tu'-i- „
Six „	nau'-yi- „
Seven „	i-kīt'-si-kai-i- „
Eight „	nan'-īs-so-o-yi- „
Nine „	pik-so'-yi- „
Ten „	ke-po'-yi- „

Numeral adjectives may be verbalized by adding -i-au to the end of the numeral, from “two,” downwards; thus—

There are two, na'-to-kūm-i-au, or na'-tok-ai-i-au.

In counting, the Indians use somewhat different words to represent “one,” “two,” and “three,” from what are given above. Thus, when a Blackfoot begins counting upon his fingers, he will say, for—

One, se'-ă; two, ni-ok'; three, na'-tok.

THE VERB.

The verb is the principal part of the Blackfoot language, and is as important and as complicated as in the Cree and Ojibway.

It will require very close application on the part of the student if he wishes to have a thorough acquaintance with it, and without that he will never be able to converse freely with the people. He should commit to memory the examples found in this book, taking very particular notice of all the various inflections which are common to all verbs.

EUPHONIC CHANGES.

Before beginning, it will be well to call the attention of the learner to the fact that he will meet constantly a change of letters, caused either by insertion or coalition for the sake of euphony, generally between the pronominal prefix and the root of the verb.

Thus, po-kom being the root of "accompany," "I accompany you" would be kit-pok-om-o; but to make kit-pok-om run more smoothly, -o- is inserted before the root, and we get kit-o-pok-om-o.

O is the most common insertion. In the third person singular and plural, where the pronoun is not used, o invariably changes to i; as—

Nit-o-pa-tük-ki, I carry; i-pa'-tük-ki-u, he carries.

Kit-o-pok-om'-o, I accompany you; i-pok-om'-i-u-ai-e, he accompanies him.

Kit-o-ko-to, I give to you; i-ko-tsi'-u-ai-e, he gives to him.

Occasionally i takes the place of o in the third person, when o is the initial letter of the root-word; thus—

Nit-o-to, I arrive; i-to, he arrives.

Other frequent changes are—üs for is; as—

İs-tse-tük-ki-u, he is angry; nit-üs'-tse-tük-ki, I am angry.

Here is is part of the root, and, in the third person, stands unaltered, because there is no prefix to interfere with it. But in the first and second persons, where the pronoun is prefixed to the root, the i is changed to u, because nit-üs'-tse-tük-ki is more smooth than nit-İs'-tse-tük-ki.

au for a; as—

Ats being root-word for "bathe," "I bathe" becomes nit-auts'. Wherever this change occurs, au is retained in the third person, although there is no prefix, as, auts'-im, he bathes.

Si is often found inserted in the first and second persons; as, nit-si-ksis-sŭp'-its-is-si, I am active; but is dropped in the third person; as, ksis-sŭp'-its-is-si-u, he is active.

Okh or awkh sometimes takes the place of o before p when there is no prefix; as—

Nit-o-pum'-a, I buy; ōkh'-pum-au, he buys.

It is met with as prefix in impersonal verbs also before p; as, awkh'-pu-tau, it snows.

SUMMARY OF EUPHONIC CHANGES.

o, inserted in first and second persons, becomes i in third person.

ŭs, inserted in first and second persons, returns to is in third person.

au, inserted in first and second persons, is retained in third person.

si, inserted in first and second persons, is dropped in third person.

ōkh } inserted in third person when p is the initial letter awkh } of the root, but only occasionally.

This is not to be considered a complete summary of the changes that occur. Many more are to be met with, but less often than those given.

DIFFERENT KINDS OF VERBS.

The verbs may be divided into three classes—the impersonal, the intransitive, and the transitive.

We shall consider them in this order, as it will then gradually lead us up from the easiest to the most difficult forms.

MOODS.

There are six moods—indicative, potential, imperative, subjunctive, conditional, and dubitative. Throughout the last-named mood, a doubt is implied as to whether the action does or does not take place. There is no infinitive mood. The subjunctive supplies its place.

TENSES.

Only such tenses as I am perfectly sure of are given in these notes. I have not found out all the elaborate forms which exist in other Indian languages, but which I believe will be discovered in the Blackfoot also.

The tense changes consist, in the indicative and potential moods, of particles inserted between the pronoun and the verb, and are as follows:—

PRESENT TENSE.

The pronoun is generally prefixed to the root without any insertion, but, sometimes ai or au are to be found.

Ai then gives the idea of the immediate present; as—

Nit-ai-oka, I am sleeping.

Au implies repeated action; as—

Nit-au-ai-ak-i-ak-i, I knock; nit-au-au-ai-ak-i-ak-i, I keep on knocking.

PAST TENSE.

Sit is the particle; as—

Nit-sit'-si-puk-si-pu, I came here.

Kit-sit'-an-īs-to, I told you.

Very often the present tense is also used as a past tense.

PERFECT TENSE.

Kawk, kai are used; as—

Ki-kawk'-an-īs-to, I have told you.

Ni-kai'-ko-tau, I have given to him.

FUTURE TENSE.

Ak, sometimes aks; as—

Nit-ak'-it-tap-po, I will go there.

Nit-ak'-a-kai, I will go home.

Kit-ak'-o-ko-to, I will give to you.

Potential Mood.

PRESENT TENSE.

Kot, sometimes kots ; as—

Nit-o-kots'-oka, I am able to sleep.

Kit-o-kot'-o-ko-to, I am able to give to you.

PRESENT TENSE (2ND FORM).

Ūs'-kaks ; as—

Nit-ūs'-kaks-oka, I can sleep.

Nit-ūs'-kaks-i-tap-po, I can go there.

FUTURE TENSE.

Ak-o-kot ; as—

Nit-ak-o-kot-uk-o-mīm-mau, I shall be able to love him.

FUTURE TENSE (2ND FORM).

Ak'-skak (contracted from ak-ŭskak) ; as—

Nit-ak'-skak-ŭk-o-mīm-mau, I shall be able to love him.

PLUPERFECT TENSE

Is distinguished by the prefix ök-stait- and suffix -opi ; as—

Nök'-stait-ŭk-o-mīm-mau-opi, I would have loved him.

In the imperative, subjunctive, and conditional moods, the tense changes consist of prefixes and suffixes, sometimes one, sometimes both, and vary according to the kind of verb, whether it be intransitive or transitive. These will be best seen by a study of the tables, which will be found hereafter, showing the prefixes and affixes of the various tenses belonging to their respective conjugations.

The Negative.

In the indicative mood and in the present and future tenses of the potential mood, is mat-ats, or, mat-a.

In the animate form of the transitive verb, it is sometimes mat-ax-au; and in the first and second persons, mat-a.

In the imperative it is pin-, pini-, or min-, mini-, except in 1st person plural, when it is nök-stai'-, or nök-stau'-.

The pluperfect tense of the potential mood, the present and future tenses of the conditional mood, and the tenses of the dubitative mood all take -sau.

The subjunctive mood takes -stai.

The past tense of the conditional mood takes -küt'-ta.

The negative form of the verb is given side by side with the positive, so that the student will have no difficulty in finding out how to form it.

The Interrogative.

There are two or three ways of asking a question in Blackfoot. The simple way is to affix -ats to the positive form of the verb; thus—

You go there, kit-ai'-täp-po.

Do you go there? kit-ai'-täp-po-(p)ats?

Küt-tai is often used in asking a question; as—

Did you go there? ki-küt'-tai-täp-po-(p)ats?

It is always placed next in order to the pronominal prefix.

When the negative form of the verb is used interrogatively, -stai takes the place of the ordinary negative; thus—

Will you not go there? kit-ak'-stai-täp-po-(p)ats?

Will you not take it? kit-ak'-stai-ots-ip-ats?

The Third Person Possessive.

Whenever the third person possessive is used either as subject or as object to a verb, a change takes place in the termination of the verb.

1. In the intransitive verb, by substituting -in-ai for the final letter in the 1st conjugation, and by adding it in the other conjugations; as—

He loves, ŭk-o-me'-tŭk-ki-u.
His son loves, ok-ku'-iŭk-o-me'-tŭk-ki-in-ai.
He sleeps, ai'-ok-au.
His daughter sleeps, o-tŭn'-nai-ai'-ok-ai-in-ai.

2. In the transitive verb, inanimate form, by substituting in--a-ai the final -ai-e of the third person; as—

He loves it, ŭk-o-me'-tsim-ai-e.
His son loves it, ok-ku'-iŭk-o-me'-tsim-in-a-ai.

3. In the transitive verb, animate form, by affixing in-ai to the termination in the first and second persons; as—

(a) I love him, nit-ŭk-o-mim-mau.
I love his——, nit-ŭk-o-mim-mai-in-ai.
You love his ——, kit-ŭk-o-mim-mai-in-ai.
 (b) He loves me, nit-ŭk-o-mim-mok.
His —— loves me, nit-ŭk-o-mim-mok-in-ai.

In the third person of the animate form no change is apparent, except when the 3rd person possessive is the subject, then u-ai-e becomes -in-ai; as—

He loves him, ŭk-o-mim'-mi-u-ai-e.
His —— loves him, ŭk-o-mim-mi'-in-ai.

“He sees him,” and “He sees his,” take the same form.

Various uses to which certain particles are put, in connection with the verb.

Mat—

1. Negative; as—

Ni-mat'-ak-it-tăp-po-(p)ats, I will not go there.
 Mat'-ŭkh-si-u-ats, it is not good.

2. Repetition; as—

Mat'-an-it, say it again.
 Mat'-si-puk-si-put, come here again.

3. Signifies "go," before an imperative; as—

Mat-an-īs-tsis', go and tell him.

Kūt-ta, kūt-tai—

1. Interrogative; as—

Ki-kūt'-ta-an-īs-tau-ats? did you tell him?

2. Negative; as—

Kūt-tai'-pu-yi-u, he does not speak.

I. THE IMPERSONAL VERB.

The impersonal verb has only the third person singular, and takes "it" as in English. The following examples illustrate it, as used in all the tenses.

Indicative Mood.

PRESENT TENSE.

Ai'-so-tau, it rains.

Awkh'-pu-tau, it snows.

PERFECT TENSE.

Ůk'-ai-so-tau, it has rained.

Ůk'-awk-pu-tau, it has snowed.

FUTURE TENSE.

Ai'-ak-so-tau, it will rain.

Ai'-ak-o-pu-tau, it will snow.

Imperative Mood.

PRESENT TENSE.

Ůn-an-ist'-so-ta-si, let it rain.

Ůn-an-ist'-o-pu-tau-si, let it snow.

Potential Mood.

PRESENT TENSE.

I-kot'-so-tau, it is able to rain.

I-kot'-o-pu-tau, it is able to snow.

FUTURE TENSE.

Ak'-o-kot-so-tau, it will be able to rain.

Ak'-o-kot-o-pu-tau, it will be able to snow.

PLUPERFECT TENSE.

Ök'-stait-so-tau-opi, it might have rained.

Ök'-stait-o-pu-tau-opi, it might have snowed.

Subjunctive Mood.

PRESENT TENSE.

Mök'-it-so-ta-si, (that) it may rain.

Mök'-o-pu-tau-si, (that) it may snow.

Conditional Mood.

PRESENT TENSE.

Ai'-so-tüs-si, when, or if, it rains.

Awkh'-pu-tüs-si, when, or if, it snows.

PAST TENSE.

Ai'-so-tau-o-pi, if it rained.

Awkh'-pu-tau-o-pi, if it snowed.

Dubitative Mood.

PRESENT TENSE.

Öks'-ka-küm-so-tau, perhaps it rains?

Öks'-ka-küm-o-pu-tau, perhaps it snows?

CONDITIONAL TENSE.

I-küm'-so-tüs-si, if so be that it rains?

I-küm'-o-pu-tüs-si, if so be that it snows?

FUTURE CONDITIONAL TENSE.

Maks-i-küm-so-tüs-si, if so be that it will rain?

Maks-i-küm-o-pu-tüs-si, if so be that it will snow?

II. THE INTRANSITIVE VERB.

The intransitive verb has six conjugations, each known by the ending of the third person, singular. The following Table will show all the prefixes and endings of the conjugations in each mood.

FUTURE CONDITIONAL TENSE.

Positive.

1. Singular Maks-i-küm-i-ok-ai-ni-ki, if so be that I shall sleep?

Negative.

1. Singular Maks'-i-küm-sau-ok-ai-ni-ki.

This tense is conjugated like the previous one, maks-i-küm-i- being always prefixed to the positive form, and maks'-i-küm-sau- to the negative.

III. THE TRANSITIVE VERB.

The transitive verb has two distinct forms for expressing action, according as the object is of the animate or inanimate gender. Thus, for example, "I love it," "it" referring to an inanimate noun, is nit-ük'-o-me-tsip; but "I love him," is nit-ük'-o-mim-mau.

The inanimate form being the least complicated of the two, will be given first.

A. INANIMATE FORM.

There are three conjugations of the inanimate form of the transitive verb, known either by the ending of the third person singular, or by the second person singular of the imperative.

The third person singular endings are—

1st Conj. -tsim-ai-e, as, ük-o-me'-tsim-ai-e, he loves it.

2nd „ -im-ai-e, „ stün'-im-ai-e, he fears it.

3rd „ -tom-ai-e, „ au'-at-tom-ai-e, he eats it.

The endings of the imperative, second person singular are—

1st Conj. -tsit, as, ük-o-me'-tsit, love thou it.

2nd „ -it, „ stün'-it, fear thou it.

3rd „ -toat, „ au'-at-toat, eat thou it.

To be conjugated like the present tense of the conditional mood, with the prefixes as here given.

(B.) THE ANIMATE FORM.

There are three conjugations of the animate form of the transitive verb, ending in the third person singular, direct; in—

Conj. 1. in -i-u-ai-e.

Conj. 2. in -tsi-u-ai-e.

Conj. 3. in -yi-u-ai-e.

In the following pages a verb of conjugation 1 is given in full.

Conjugation 2 will be found to differ in general construction from conjugation 1, in the inverse form of the indicative mood, when a contraction takes place; thus, we have—

Conj. 1, Direct	I love you, kit-ük-o-mim-mo.
Conj. 1, Inverse	You love me, kit-uk-o-mim-mok.
Conj. 2, Direct	I give you, kit-o-ko-to.
Conj. 2, Inverse	You give me, kit-o-kok.

Here the plan of conjugation 1 is to affix k. The plan of conjugation 2 is to omit the last syllable, and affix k to the last syllable but one.

Conjugation 3 will always have the 2nd singular of the imperative mood end in os.

With these two things borne in mind, the following table will be found to be a good guide to the various prefixes and endings throughout all three conjugations.

FUTURE TENSE.

Positive.

Mak-ük-o-mīm'-mai-ni-ki, if I shall love him.

Negative.

Sau-ak'-ük-o-mīm-mai-ni-ki.

This tense is conjugated the same as the present tense of this mood, mak- always being prefixed to the positive, and sau-ak- to the negative.

Dubititive Mood.

PRESENT TENSE.

Positive.

Nöks'-ka-küm-ük-o-mīm-mau, it may be that I love him?

Negative.

Maks-i-küm-sau-ük-o-mĭm-mai-ni-ki.

These two tenses are conjugated exactly the same as the indefinite, conditional, care being taken to prefix the distinguishing particles as given here.

PASSIVE VOICE.

The 1st singular, present tense, of the passive voice is formed from the inverse form of the transitive verb, animate form, by adding o to the "he-me" form; thus—

Nit-sĭx-i-pok, he bit me; nit-sĭx-i-pok-o, I am bitten.
